WORK ON THE STREETS

HARRY B. LYNCH, PUBLIC SERVICE MANAGER, TELLS OF CITY IMPROVEMENTS

In connection with the many details necessary for the making up of an annual report, Harry B. Lynch, manager of the public service department, is collecting quite a mass of interesting matter. For instance, when Mr. Lynch took up the public service work he found that on all the streets the electric light poles were doing the double duty of conveying electricity to the houses and acting as street-light poles. For years this condition continued, and to a considerable extent still exists; but gradually the poles on the streets are being done away with and removed to the alleys, while the streets have their separate light service.

How great an improvement this is can be seen especially on those streets that have the new standards. Mr. Lynch has prepared a good-sized map showing what streets have the improved service and which are still under the old system. This map shows a number of red and blue lines which mark the difference in the service. Those streets marked blue have poles serving for street lighting as well as for house lighting purposes. Those marked red show the new conditions. The summing up of these maps shows that three-eighths of the streets are improved. Mr. Lynch concludes that the only proper method of lighting the streets is to have the new standards. There are 25 miles of poles in the streets.

Turning to the water department, Mr. Lynch stated that the department had called for bids for 122 more tons of cast-iron pipe. He also stated that a 6-inch cast-iron pipe is to be installed on East Third street, which will greatly improve the water service there. At present the pressure in that section is so slight that the water has no rise and sometimes the flow is very poor.

"It has been brought before the notice of the public that the city is calling for bonds for the purchase of a new pumping fire engine," said Mr. Lynch. "I have for a long time advocated this improvement, having been convinced that the city was in a very dangerous position from having no such protection. The chemical engine has always been a mere makeshift, useful enough for small brush fires and for fires in houses where the engine can get on the spot in time; but useless in the case of a large fire or where a fire has obtained a good hold.

"The provision now contemplated of a good pumping engine will more than pay in increased protection for the small expense incurred in purchasing this equipment. I have sometimes been censured for keeping before the public the fact that the gravity system without a pumping engine was not sufficient protection, but I am glad to know that the protection will soon be provided. I do not think the installation of the new engine will make much difference to the insurance rates, because there is already so much competition in selling insurance that the rates are quite low.

"This department has completed a 4-inch main on Ivy street between Central and Pacific avenues. This has been done ahead of the paving. Formerly there was a 2-inch screw line in that section. We are replacing all services in that section also, so that there will be no tearing up of the streets after the paving has been done.

"We have put in a great many hydrants lately. Three have been installed on Brand boulevard between Third and Fifth and one on Broadway, besides putting others in various parts of the city. These are all double-nozzled hydrants.

"In addition to all this outside work the department has effected a considerable saving in the office by running the light and water service bookkeeping together. All the bookkeeping, billing and collecting details are attended to together. In this way we have effected a saving of $500 a month. When the annual report of the department is ready many additional details of interest will be made public."

MENACE OF THE SUBMARINE

In modern warfare the most advanced methods of conducting the offensive against another nation is in danger of becoming obsolete at a moment's notice. At the outset of the war in Europe the German submarines attempted various maneuvers, such as endeavoring to enter harbors, penetrate estuaries and get far into the interior of a country in order to do damage. In no case has the attempt been successful.

WOMEN AND NEW LAWS

DR. JESSIE RUSSELL SAYS THAT WOMEN HAVE INTEREST IN PROPOSED LEGISLATION

That the women of the state are taking a profound interest in some of the proposed new legislation that directly affects their interests is manifest to those who are keeping in touch with the trend of opinion in the leading women's clubs of the state. It is to be expected that the discussions that are now going on in those centers of intelligence will shortly bear fruit in the initiation of new legislation and in the modification of some of the bills that are now proposed.

Dr. Jessie A. Russell, 343 North Maryland avenue, who is chairman of legislation for five different women's organizations, including the Glendale Tuesday Afternoon club and the Tropico Thursday Afternoon club, says:

"Women generally throughout the states are taking a greater interest in the new legislation that is likely to be proposed at the next session of the legislature. Special interest is being centered on the new community property bills, and also on a bill which proposes to permit widows to inherit community property without the necessity of paying inheritance tax. These measures are of the deepest interest to all women. Women, whether owners of property or not, cannot fail to be particularly interested in their sisters' welfare. Other states are looking to California for incentive and example. It behooves us to give our services to the betterment of the legal status of the women of the state.

"Bills dealing with various phases of community property have from time to time been brought forward in the legislature, but no measure of the many submitted has met with the approval of the two preceding legislatures. This was due no doubt to hastily prepared measures or lack of sufficient publicity. This year the women of California have determined to prepare satisfactory bills and to carry on an educational campaign. I have been in correspondence with Mrs. W. E. Colby of Sacramento, who is state chairman of legislation for the Federation of Women's clubs, with reference to these bills. They will undoubtedly be among those indorsed by the Legislative Council of Women and the Federation of Women's clubs generally, as well as the Parent-Teacher federations, which are arranging programs along the line of the proposed legislation. Personally I have accepted 32 engagements to speak on this subject up to Jan. 1. I am not an enthusiast on the subject of a large number of new laws, but there are a few amendments or in some cases new measures necessary to meet the changed status of the women of today."

CITY CLUB TO MEET

Quite a number of the ladies of Glendale, Burbank and Tropico, who are members of the City club, which meets in Blanchard hall, 235 South Broadway, Los Angeles, on Monday, Sept. 27, at 12:45 p.m., are looking forward with pleasure to that meeting. It has been announced that Oscar Muller, who has traveled widely in the Far East and is especially acquainted with international problems in China and Japan, will lecture on "Japan and the Open Door in China."

In view of the preesnt world crisis and the sudden accretion of power in Japan consequent on the expulsion of the Germans from Kiao-Chou, the lecturer is expected to have something interesting to tell of the significant movements that are going on in the Far East. The United States is as deeply interested in the open door in China as any other country could possibly be.

Hull refused to state whether he had escaped from prison or had secured his release on heavy bond. In the latter case, his friends say, Hull undoubtedly plans to forfeit the bond should the Mexican court hold him responsible for the soldier's death.

Any other information that may be desired can be secured from the president, Louis G. Guernsey, at the hall of records, Los Angeles.

The Evening News has been informed from the county registrar's office in Los Angeles that Mrs. Church, who is a deputized registrar, will be at the city hall in Glendale today, and all persons wishing to register may do so by calling at that place.

WALNUT SEASON OPENING

We have it from good authority that the opening prices of California walnuts will be announced Sept. 30, says the Pacific Fruit World. It is said the crop promises to be 40 per cent heavier than last year. This would indicate lower prices than last season. In an estimate given out the 1st of August the crop was estimated at 13,200 tons. Since then there has been some additional dropping and the crop is now estimated at 12,500 to 12,800 tons, which is still larger than last year's crop. The harvest, it is said, is ten days later. The bulk of shipments, it is thought, will move the last half of October. In 1914 the last of the shipments were ready to move Nov. 7. It is thought it will be the middle of November before the season closes this year. The quality, it is said, will be fully equal to last year's, and it is believed the sizes will average larger than last season. In regard to the French crop, it is said it is being affected by the unusual hot weather.

CATHOLIC LADIES' GARDEN PARTY

Standing room was at a premium at the garden party given by the ladies of the Holy Family church at the home of Mrs. Powers, on West Colorado boulevard, last night. The program was in charge of Mrs. Coral Harrison Sloan of the Glendale Academy of Music and Art. The first number was an Irish dialect selection by Mrs. Sloan, which received tremendous applause. She graciously responded with an encore in child dialect. Little Miss Lillian Mason, in a Mozart sonata, played flawlessly and was loudly applauded. The real hit of the evening was little Mary Lou Ledbetter in a monologue, "Just a Boy." She was followed by Dorothy Bonnell, who played a composition by Liszt which was very enthusiastically received. Irish ballads were sung by Mr. E. H. Sargent, after which Dorothy Bonnell gave an exhibition of Greek statuary posing. Miss Viola Yorba and Mr. Martinez closed the program with two Spanish dances, cleverly executed, with Miss Jenkins as accompanist.

Games and refreshments concluded a very delightful evening, which netted a neat sum for the church.

WAR ODDITIES

Turkish prisoners quartered on an island in the Aegian sea are furnished an aeroplane mail service by the French government, which allows them to write and receive letters.

All German military commanders, with one exception—General Falkenhayn—are between 65 and 72 years old. Falkenhayn is 59.

The alarmed bleating of a lamb—mascot of a regiment of Italian Bersaglieri—near Monte Nero led to the discovery of an attempted enemy surprise and caused the defeat of the Austrians with heavy loss.

DEFECTIVE VOTING REGISTRATION

There is a serious defect in the system of registration of voters in use in the City of Glendale. It is doubtful if a very large proportion of the voters in Glendale or of those who are desirous of voting know where to go to register. That is a most effective method of disfranchising citizens in defiance of the constitution. Let the ordinary voter ask himself or herself if he or she knows where a voter should register. There are several registrars appointed, but none of them seem to have done anything to inform the public that they have the facilities for registration nor to have indicated where those facilities could be found. This information should be advertised.

It does not seem fair to the public to leave it in ignorance on such a matter. In fact, it is exceedingly unfair. The average individual is very busy earning a living and if the matter of registration be not brought prominently before his notice is more than likely to forget it. There should be several registration places in the city. Not in some private house, of which no voter would ever think; but in some public place where citizens are in the habit of going. There is a fine recess at the fire house where a registration table could very well have been placed for a few days and where many voters would have registered. There are other places such as the Pacific Electric depot and elsewhere. People are constantly passing and repassing those places and would easily take time to register.

One can see how an interested registrar could diligently register all the parties favorable to some doctrine in which he or she happened to be interested and by passing over those not favorable to that particular doctrine effectively disfranchise a certain proportion of the voters. As a matter of fact any system of appointing registrars that lends itself to tricks of that kind should be discouraged.

There should always be a registrar at the city hall. Indeed it is inconceivable how such a service has been omitted. Quite a large number of citizenes have moved into town recently and have been too busy to think of the necessity of registration if they are to preserve their rights as citizens. Others have moved into new precincts and should register but for lack of facilities have failed. In this way a large number of the citizens of the community have no means of expressing themselves on any public subject.

It may be stated that it would be well to see that persons appointed to register names are not interested in any particular cause and thus be in a position to be tempted to make their registration a partisan affair. It should also be seen to that no registrar is occupied in any business that will prevent him from having time at his disposal to register citizens. It should also be seen to that no registrar is a mere stay-at-home individual who can only be found in her own house the location of which is certainly not common knowledge.

Today is the last day on which citizens may register in order to take part in the next election. It is important that all should register. To that end Mrs. May Church will attend at the City hall in the afternoon and will register all who are anxious to discharge one of the most sacred duties of their citizenship—that of voting in behalf of the civic welfare.

IRELAND AND HOME RULE

One thing the war did was to stop the unnatural opposition of the northern province of Ireland to the application to Ireland of the provisions of the home rule bill as passed by the British parliament. Under the terms on which the bill was passed it is provided that it shall come into operation automatically the moment the war is over. Should there be no step taken to put it into operation then under the statute it automatically comes into effect.

There is now some talk of amending the act as it was passed and thus curtailing many of the most important of its provisions. It is not likely that a liberal ministry would be induced to meddle with the provisions of the act as it was passed. Most of the opposition to the act came from the ultra-protestants of the province of Ulster, who have not yet forgotten Boyne Water and the siege of Londonderry. Those hyperpatriotic stepsons of Albion even went the length of arming themselves and drilling for a fight with the homerulers. That they would have gone the whole length of inciting civil war is not to be doubted.

Before the European war broke out the streets of Belfast and Londonderry were crowded with protestant troops hastening to their drills. The fields and parks and mountain sides of Down, Antrim and Cavan were witness to many a modern maneuver as the khaki-clad volunteers of the province went creeping over hill and dale.

At the same time the south of Ireland was witness to similar scenes and a clash between the two bodies of incensed Irishmen was imminent when the war broke out. In a moment all was changed. Whatver hopes the German emissaries may have had of embroiling Ireland and coming to the help of the homerulers was dissipated by the spectacle of an enemy threatening the shores of the islands. Protestant and Catholic alike joined in the defense of the common land and forgot their differences.

If anyone should be so shortsighted as to renew the old feeling of animosity and hatred that existed before the war they would be deserving of being put in an insane asylum. Saxon-Norman England has never understood Celtic Ireland. The somewhat unimaginative Englishman ever since the days of Raleigh and Spencer has been incapable of entering into the feelings of the perfervid Celt, thrilling with the poetry and sensitiveness that have made the island the home of some of the finest literature in the world.

Responsive in the highest degree to the interpreter of her finer feelings, thrilling to the heart's core with tenderness for all nature animate and inanimate, Ireland has always worn her heart upon her sleeve to those who loved her and turned a face of stone toward those who sneered at her history, her religion or her national aspirations. The famous Lord Chesterfield, the arbiter of manners of the 18th century had sufficient insight to perceive this and advocate home rule at a time when no Englishman dared to hint at it.

It has always been the misfortune of Ireland to be governed by aliens of an unsympathetic nation. Wherever there has been a ruler like the late King Edward the Peacemaker, who sympathized with Ireland's aims, there has been instant response on the part of Ireland. It was one of the deep regrets of those who knew the inner history of King Edward's struggle for a recognition of Ireland's just claims that that farseeing ruler died before seeing his plans for a regenerated Ireland brought to fruition. Had the strong hand of the Peacemaker been over the reactionaries of the British house of lords, Ireland would have ere now come into her own.

What can be done by justice and conciliation can be seen in the loyal history of South Africa since the Boer war. There the British and the men who fought them so bravely are now dwelling in peace and quiet and also in loyalty to the kingdom across the seas. Had the policy of justice and conciliation not been put into practice at the time it was and a United States of South Africa been created how different would have been the story of the fight against the Germans in that quarter of the world.

So it should be in Ireland. A policy of liberty and recognition of national rights should result in an immense gain to the empire and the world. The proud poetic fire of the Celtic heart should be one of Britain's greatest treasures.

There is quite a "stir" on the Styr river, where the Russians are taking their turn at pounding the Austro-Germans.

Police Judge Wilson Giles of Olympia, Wash., discovered that "chickens come home to roost," sometimes in a very disagreeable manner, when he was compelled to sentence his own son to ten days' imprisonment for chicken stealing and afterwards found it was his own chickens the wayward scion of the judicial household had stolen.

It would appear that an effective method of fighting one's enemy in these days of advanced warfare of the superman species is to prevent him from getting loans in neutral countries. This is believed to be fully as farreaching as blowing up his munitions factories or those of neutral nations or organizing strikes in his land or other lands that are dealing with him in the way of trade.

Captain Franz Von Papen, military attache to the German embassy at Washington, the refined and cultured gentleman who wrote in the "Archibald" letters about the "ignorant Yankees" and was granted a vacation while the investigation went on, took to his heels in San Francisco, when some newspaper men wanted to interview him. Perhaps he was afraid his ignorance might appear. He has certainly shown himself ignorant of true civility and of the duties incumbent on the guest of a nation, among other things.

PERSONALS

Miss Helma Hossman of Dennison, Iowa, is visiting her friend, Mrs. Cadd of 327 South Louise street. Miss Hossman will make a short visit here and see the beauties of the state.

Dr. C. E. Lauler, Dr. R. C. Lane and Mr. Richard Keshishyan, brother of Mrs. C. E. Lauler, 1427 Burchett street, leave Sunday for the Calabasas mountains, where they will engage in deer hunting.

Mr. Richard Keshishyan, brother of Mrs. C. E. Lauler, 1427 Burchett street, who is a house guest at the Lauler home, spent three days at Dr. Lauler's father's ranch at Elsinore, where he had a most enjoyable time hunting and fishing.

Mr. S. L. Borthick and daughter, Miss Ruby Borthick, are enjoying a most delightful visit in San Francisco and at Porterville. In the latter city they are the guests of Frank Borthick, son and brother of Mr. and Miss Borthick.

Mrs. M. Lorena Miller, a cousin of Mrs. M. Cadd of 327 South Louise street, is visiting at the residence of Mrs. Cadd. Mrs. Miller, who comes from Big Bear Valley, near Victorville, is looking around Glendale for a residence. It is probable that she will settle here in order to give her daughter, Miss Lois Miller, the advantage of the Glendale schools.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Dunham of 642 North Louise street, Glendale, who had spent three months at Marne, Ia., returned to Glendale Friday. Mr. Dunham says Iowa looked good to him, as when he made the visit in that grand old state she was dressed in her very best garments. Marne is located about 55 miles east of Council Bluffs.

A GRATEFUL CLASS OF PEOPLE

More than ever is it a noticeable fact that citizens of the Glendale community are appreciating the convenience of having a daily paper of the character of the Evening News circulate among them. It makes it possible to give needed publicity to public meetings and educational, social and religious doings that could not otherwise gain publicity through any other medium. The United Press service that has recently been introduced is also being appreciated by an intelligent class of readers.

The Evening News is gradually being made a more useful paper in the community on account of the increased support it is receiving in the way of additional subscribers and more substantial advertising patronage.

The job printing department is also receiving more recognition from a satisfied and grateful class of readers.

ORCHESTRAL PROGRAM

The following numbers will be rendered tomorrow preceding the regular session of the Sunday school by the Presbyterian orchestra, beginning at 9:25:

March—"School Life" (Johnson).
"Anvil Chorus" from "Il Trovatore" (Verdi).
Elegie (Massenet).

The orchestra is planning to give a concert on the 29th of October. The public of Glendale will be invited. Don't forget to set aside that date for an enjoyable evening.

REOPENS STUDIO

H. Geo. Ketterling, organist and orchestra director at the Presbyterian church of Glendale, begs to announce that he has reopened his studio at 1304 Colorado boulevard. Piano and elementary harmony taught privately and in classes. Beginners a specialty. 26t3Tu.Thur.Sat.*

As I already have a very fine instrument, I wish to dispose of the fine new $350 Schiller piano which I won in the Glendale Evening News contest. This is a splendid instrument of sweet tone and is new and in good condition. I will sell for cash or purchaser may make terms to suit himself.

This instrument may be seen at my home, 310 West Park avenue, or call Glendale 78W.

BAPTIST PROGRAM

The summer heat is about gone and a remarkable increase in attendance should be the order of the day at both the services of the local churches. If every member of the local Baptist church should together attend the morning service with the large proportion of visitors always in evidence, some coming from Los Angeles and surrounding towns, the ushers would have their hands full seating the audience. Now, all together, let's push for record-breakers in every department.

Rev. John H. Troy will complete the second year of his ministry in Glendale in a few more Sundays. His anniversary sermon will be announced later. "The Heavenly Vision" will be the subject of a devotional sermon at the morning service tomorrow.

The Sunday school, under the leadership of Mr. Roy Kent, commences at 9:30. B. Y. P. U. at 6:45. Special announcement elsewhere. Regular open-air service corner of Brand and Broadway at 6 o'clock. Brown and Curry songs.

$20,000 IN CASH PRIZES FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

More than $20,000 in cash prizes will be distributed to the school children of Los Angeles city and county Saturday afternoon, Oct. 9, at Exposition park, Los Angeles. The exercises will begin promptly at 2 o'clock and will be under the direction of the 1915 general committee, which inaugurated a city and county beautifying campaign more than a year ago.

Approximately $7400 will go to the county schools, 268 of which entered the prize contest for the prettiest school grounds of the year. The Los Angeles schools, 102 of which entered the contest, will receive approximately $5100.

Probably the happiest aggregation at the ceremony will be the 816 boys and girls who will receive prizes of $2.50 to $35 for their home gardens maintained during the year. A total of $8825 will be distributed to them. More than 8000 pupils of the city schools competed in the home garden contest.

The result of the campaign is most gratifying to the community. While a few of the schools took but little interest, the majority of the grounds were beautified materially. The tens of thousands of visitors during the present year who viewed the educational institutions of the county and city were astounded at the work of the little folk toward making their communities beautiful and fragrant with flowers.

TROPICO

N. P. Banks post and corps held another delightful all-day meeting at G. A. R. hall Friday. Following the usual morning meeting of the post, at which Commander George W. Sanford presided, a substantial dinner, over which Mrs. Myra C. K. Shuey presided, was served to over a hundred guests. Following dinner a program was presented by Commander Sanford and Mrs. Adelaide H. Imler, the corps president. Dr. J. H. Henry rendered a patriotic solo. Rev. C. R. Norton, Comrades Dennison, Robert Taylor, Gibbons and Henry each gave brief interesting talks, and Miss Cora Hickman read the following, which is the diary of Mrs. Nathan D. Burlingham, who but recently returned from a year's residence in Alaska, at Fairbanks, the land of the midnight sun. Mrs. Burlingham is as interesting a conversationalist as she is a writer, and her letter or diary was most thoroughly enjoyed by all.

POPE BENEDICT SETS ASIDE CARDINAL WHO FORBIDS READING DAILY PAPERS

One might not think that the Jesuit party in Rome was liberal, yet in the present controversy concerning the reading of daily papers, stirred up by Cardinal Cagiano de Azevedo, the Jesuits have taken the liberal side and supported Pope Benedict in his liberal attitude. All Rome has been stirred by the controversy. It is the old fight between retrogression and progress; between repression and liberty; between bigotry and freedom of thought.

There are two prominent parties in Rome, often in antagonism, but just as often in accord—the Black and the White. The head of the Blacks is the general of the Society of Jesus, the head of one of the strongest and most widely spread orders in the world. The head of the Whites is Pope Benedict XV. The Blacks retain all the characteristics of that wonderful society that has lived where others would have become extinct and has survived to hold sometimes the balance of power in the vatican.

Cardinal Cagiano de Azevedo is a Spaniard, with all the intolerant characteristics of the ultra party of that nation. He and Torquemada would have made a fine pair of running mates in the good old days. Cagiano was determined that none of his clergy should be permitted to read a single line in the modern newspapers. If they wanted reading was there not the Osservatore Romano to look at? The Osservatore Romano is the staid and orthodox organ of the orthodox church. It is an evening paper and is about as amusing reading as a dictionary.

Naturally the priests were indignant. Things were happening all around them. The country was on fire. Their own flock was leaving for the war, and Cagiano de Azevedo ordered them to read nothing but the Osservatore Romano. Complaints came to the pope's ear and he boldly cut the difficulty by "promoting" the cardinal out of the road. That is an old vatican principle. "Promoveatur ut amoveatur" is the Latin saying—"Let him be promoted that he may be moved out of our road."

Cardinal de Azevedo, even though cognizant of the pope's liberal ideas and his desire that newspapers be permitted the clergy, fell back upon the technical authority invested in his office and gave forth the definite order. Thereupon the pope, whose first step upon ascending the papal throne was to bring into accord the two elements of modernity and illiberalism, graciously slated the cardinal for promotion to the position of cancelliere. This act followed an open one of the Cardinal Azevedo, who several days ago issued a circular in which he prohibited the reading of the Roman morning papers, denouncing especially one morning Catholic paper. He even condemned one which the pope had approved.

The incident has naturally given rise to much comment among anticlericals, who see in it an outbreak of certain dissensions existing in the vatican. Pope Benedict XV, however, rather gives forth the impression that such dissension, if existent, will quickly disappear.

It was Pope Pius X who first permitted the order against newspapers to go forth, limiting, as would Cardinal Azevedo, all clerics to the Osservatore Romano. Pope Benedict XV has always manifested an interest in newspapers and their influence. Naturally a law so narrow as to prohibit clerics from reading daily journals was one with which he had little sympathy. His idea is that the Catholic press should become a great instrument for the good of the church, and he sees no way of accomplishing this by putting a ban upon it in favor of one official evening organ.

TO EACH HIS PLACE

Men have died of homesickness for the narrow fields and elm-shaded hollows in the hills of old New England in the same spirit that sends others toiling painfully back to the brown sand dunes about San Francisco bay. Some have lost their hearts to the deep pine woods of the north and others to the stately moss-hung live oaks that line the shell road to Mobile. Some would come to the city of their souls through the low, warm mists that overhang Chesapeake bay, and others prefer to see the lights of home shining clear in a rise of the great plains 30 miles away as the crow flies. The truest thing Kipling ever said is that "God gave all men all earth to love, but since their hearts are so small, ordained for each one place should prove beloved over all." That place is home, and they have lived who find it.—Collier's.

OLD FOLKS' PICNIC

There is one picnic that knows no state lines and no country. Each year the people who have passed the threescore-and-ten year line have a day of their own. They meet in Sycamore grove and have a reunion of their own. This year it will be the second day of October, Saturday, and will be an all-day picnic with dinner at noon. Each one must bring dinner, cup and spoon. Coffee, cream and sugar will be furnished free to all who attend.

Everyone is interested in this reunion, for these old folks, and the press, with friends of the people, are working together for publicity and success. There will be just a brief program, but the main feature will be the social side of the affair.

All should work for the pleasure of these old folks for this one day. Why not, if you have an auto, gather up a load of the old folks in your vicinity and take them to the park quickly and easily? It would be a kindly and gracious thing to do. Remember, they may not be here next year, so do it now and make it a day of joy to them. We expect to have with us one lady of 107 years and a man 98 years old, and it will be worth coming to see these two alone.

If anyone needs help he can, of course, bring a younger person or a husband will bring his wife even if she is under age.

England's tax plan will impress the stay-at-home Briton with the horrors of war.

MARY FURY OF COUNTY GALWAY GAVE TEN SONS TO THE BRITISH ARMY

The mothers' record in this war is held by Mrs. Mary Fury of Loughrea, County Galway, Ireland.

She has given ten sons to the British army. Five are dead in France. One lies in a hospital recovering from wounds. One is a prisoner in Germany. One remains fighting and another is nursing a right arm shattered by a bullet.

This is not all of Mrs. Fury's fighting family. She has a daughter, Mrs. Mary Cosey, Romford, England. Mrs. Cosey's husband is one of Romford's 2000 fighting men at the front. Several weeks ago Mrs. Cosey supported her large family of small children with the aid of two brothers-in-law. Now they have gone to war and she is struggling on alone.

What Mrs. Mary Fury and Mrs. Mary Cosey have suffered in England's greatest crisis is the story of hundreds of homes of the working classes in the British Isles. A similar story can be told in a smaller way from the mansions of British aristocracy and from the "castles" of the middle classes. But it does not leave the sting of poverty that confronts Mrs. Mary Fury of County Galway and her sisters of the lower classes. She will suffer until her body is planted in Irish soil, and with her thousands of other women whose husbands have left the spade and shovel.

If conscription comes in Great Britain it will not find the husbands, brothers and sons of the Mary Furys and Mary Coseys among the "slackers."

The laboring element is becoming dually the scarcest element in Britain. Cities, towns and villages alike have emptied their houses and their streets. These men are today in the majority in Northern France, the Dardanelles and other theaters of war. The upper and middle classes are in the hopeless numerical minority.

There is one obscure little street in Walworth, a suburb of South London, that tells the tale. This street is in the heart of the "working" locality. It is called "Trafalgar street" and is simply a double row of 150 small brick houses and shops built closely together. The war office has distributed cards of honor for every family that sends a man to the army. There are 195 cards of honor in the windows of these little shops and houses. Children play with cocked hats and wooden guns in the narrow street. About half of them will never see their fathers again. They will go into the factories their fathers left as soon as their arms are strong enough.

The war has brought all British classes together—in the trenches. It has brought all classes at home down to the same plane—during the war. But what is to become of the Mrs. Furys and Mrs. Coseys after the war, is a question that is hard to answer.

PLAGUE IN NEW ORLEANS

After a lapse of nearly a year a case of human plague occurred in the city of New Orleans on the 27th of August. This case was confirmed as true bubonic plague on September 8. The epidemiological investigations as to the exact source of the infection have not yet been completed, but it is believed that it was probably received in the city of New Orleans.

Up to date over 91,000 buildings in that city have been rat-proofed and over 435,000 rodents have been captured in traps alone. The occurrence of this case demonstrates the difficulties surrounding the eradication of the disease and indicate that had it not been for the active co-operative efforts of the United States public health service and of the departments of health of the state of Louisiana and the city of New Orleans, the outbreak would have reached greater proportions and would have been longer continued. It also points out to other cities the necessity for ridding themselves of the rodent carriers of the disease and of thoroughly rat-proofing all of their buildings.

No fear is felt that this case will be followed by an outbreak. Officers and men of the public health service, well trained in the control of the disease, are on the ground and, with the health authorities of the city of New Orleans, are taking every precaution to prevent the spread of the disease from the city and within it.

CLOSE ESTIMATING

A geologist of the United States geological survey once estimated 3000 feet as the necessary depth to drill in a certain locality to find water, with the result of less than 1 per cent of error, a flow measuring half a million gallons a day having been struck at a depth of 2987 feet. In another branch of the work of the survey, that of estimating at the close of the calendar year the production of the various minerals during that year, even this percentage of error is being reduced. The survey's estimate on Jan. 1, 1915, of the production of iron ore was 41,440,000 long tons; the actual figures received from all the companies are now seen to be 41,439,761 long tons, a difference of only 239 tons.

UNIVERSAL PEACE AGE

REV. JOHN H. TROY SAYS PEACE WILL COME BY ANNIHILATION OF NATIONS

At the meeting of the First Baptist church Bible class Friday night the Rev. John H. Troy spoke on "Universal Peace" to a large audience. He said, in part:

Rev. J. H. Troy

"Universal peace is the brightest jewel in the diadem of the Prince of Peace.

"'And they shall beat swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more.' (Isa. 2:4.).

"The aspiration for universal peace must not blind the mind to the divine program revealed in the prophetic word. Talking peace will not bring peace. The first part of the above quoted verse states what must precede the age of universal peace.

"'And He will judge between the nations, and will decide concerning many peoples.'

"Judgment of the nations must precede universal peace. The stone cut out without hands (Christ coming in His millennial kingdom) will dash upon the image of the Gentile nations and, 'Then was the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver and the gold broken in pieces together, and became like the chaff of the summer threshing floors; and the wind carried them away, so that no place was found for them; and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain and filled the whole earth.' (Dan. 2:35.) Peace will come not by the arbitration of the nations, but by the annihilation of the nations.

"The student of eschatology knows that universal peace is not yet. He is not a nearsighted optimist. He knows that Israel must first be restored to the holy land. He knows that the nations of the earth must be federated under Antichrist. He expects to pass through a period of vacuuous peace talk. He knows that God is about to deal with the nations of the earth largely in judgment for their cruel persecution of the Jews. He knows that for three and one-half years the whole world will pass through great suffering of all time, the period of Jacob's trouble. And he is most dogmatic in the conviction that there can be no age of universal peace till the revelation of the King of kings in personal glory, followed by the armies in heaven in swift judgment upon a gospel-rejecting and God-defying world.

"It might be argued philosophically that the arbitrary divisions of the nations of the earth and the conflicting interests of the rich and the poor, with attending increase in knowledge and swift running to and fro made possible by mechanical progress, further support the contention of revelation that frightful revolution rather than peaceful evolution will characterize the close of the present dispensation. The seed of the devil and the seed of God must clash yet again.

"Be not deceived by the vain schemes and preachments of men. Two men got into a heated argument on Bryan's moral right to take from his office in Washington the desk upon which had been signed a few more treaties of arbitration. The champion of Bryan earnestly contended that if the nations of the earth would only do as Bryan says there would be no more war. The argument grew heated. Finally the Bryanite, with wild gesticulation, eyes flashing fire and tones of thunder, declared: 'I'm for Bryan, have been with him from the beginning, will always be for him, and if necessary I'll fight for him.' This reminds us of the press reports of the peace conference held by the good sisters at the Hague. The argument over the seating of the German delegates grew so militant that a corps of milliners were needed to restore the shape of many a bonnet. Newspaper exaggeration perhaps. But who could blame the delegates from England and Belgium refusing to seat the delegates from Germany with bleeding Belgium at the door?

"Carnegie fabricates steel out of which men build navies and a palace of universal peace. If I were a cartoonist I should draw a temple of peace with Andy and his salaried ministers of peace seated around the circling room writing, reading and declaiming on universal peace, while beneath in subterranean depths should depict the millions of humanity divided into races and classes, suffering, discontented, grumbling, hungry, steeped in ignorance and superstition; and upon the top of the mass of wriggling humanity I'd make that temple of peace to rock and pitch as on the back of a terrific and perpetual earthquake.

"'Gone all of our illusions and the dreams of peace we wrought;
Forgotten all the lessons that the blood-smeared sword has taught.
The grim retreat from Moscow when Napoleon's legions died,
The awful field of Austerlitz and Jena's crimson tide;
The gentler, noble part of man and all that knowledge brings
Are banished from the present to appease the lust of kings.'

"'When they are saying peace and safety, then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a woman with child; and they shall in no wise escape.'" (Thes. 5:3.)

CHALLENGE JOHN D., JR.

(Special Service to Evening News.)

DENVER, Sept. 25.—Answering the recent statement made by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to the effect that he did not discriminate against union men, the committee of the United Mine Workers today defied the billionaire magnate to produce a dozen unionists from his entire force of employes in Southern Colorado.

LEARN TO FORGIVE

Learn to forgive,
'Tis best, we know,
And he who conquers self
To Evil strikes a blow.
In pity, not in anger,
Let others do their worst;
See them today, but first

See them today, but first
Consider what their lot
In years to come may be,
And envy not a jot.
No harm can come to thee
If thou thy lesson learn
In Life's tempestuous school,
And do thy best to live
Up to the "Golden Rule."
—Lon Dinsmore.

WHAT IS A "COULEE"?

The term "coulee" is generally applied throughout the northern tier of states to any steep-sided gulch or water channel, and at times even to a stream valley of considerable length. The term was doubtless derived from the French verb couler, meaning to flow. This use of "coulee" should not be confused with the geologic use of the word, which signifies a solidified stream or sheet of lava.

The word "jitney" is officially contained in the records of Wisconsin's highest court, and thereby has become as standard as any other word in Webster. In a recent decision the court referred to the "jitney bus."

It is pleasant to learn that our shipping now totals more than 8,000,000 tons, and is second only to Great Britain's, which is nearly three times as much. The essential thing, however, is to hold the gain when the war is over, and with all the interned German ships released, competition returns and rates drop. And that is something that congress will have to concern itself with next winter.

New York has been able to boil down its constitution to only six times the length of the federal constitution, after working at it only a few weeks longer than the convention of 1787. Of course, it's vastly harder to frame a constitution for a state than a nation, and takes more words.

Crumbs of comfort may be all right, but it takes a lot of them to make a square meal.
